Congratulations Dr. Adam Kirton, MD, MSc’96, PGME’05, the recipient of the 2022 Cumming School of Medicine Alumni of Distinction Award in Research. Dr. Kirton is an internationally renowned researcher in pediatric stroke and perinatal brain injury and a practicing pediatric neurologist at the Alberta Children's Hospital. As the founder and director for the ACH Brain Computer Interface Laboratory (BCI4kids), Dr. Kirton's vision is to ensure children with physical disabilities have access to cutting-edge technology to meaningfully improve their independence and participation in the world around them.

FUNDING SUCCESS

Congratulations to Dr. Nicola Wright who was awarded the Jeffrey Modell Foundation Translational Research Grant in collaboration with Dr. Don Kohn, UCLA, for their submission "Gene Therapy for CD3delta Severe Combined Immune Deficiency (CD3δ SCID). Dr. Wright is a Clinical Associate Professor in pediatrics whose primary research involves diagnosis and management of patients with severe SCID prior to curative therapy. This study will produce a safe and effective gene therapy for patients with CD3δ SCID, improving survival and significantly reducing long term illness.

This work may also demonstrate the feasibility and efficacy of personalized medicine for children with rare pediatric infectious diseases.

COVID-19 VACCINE AND KIDS

Dr. Steven Greenway is encouraging parents to vaccinate their children against COVID-19. A pediatric cardiologist, Dr. Greenway says that rare heart complications occurring in kids exposed to COVID-19 are more likely to develop when they are exposed to the virus in the community, rather than through the vaccines. "In my experience, myocarditis related to the vaccine has been mild and has not caused a decrease in heart function. Myocarditis associated with natural exposure to a virus is more serious and potentially more permanent." Dr. Greenway has developed a video to share this information and help parents to make informed decisions. Read more.

STRIKING IMAGE COMPETITION 2022

Showcase your research in the Striking Image Competition, hosted and organized by the Advanced Imaging and Microscopy Network, by submitting biology-related images captured on any optical microscope across the UCalgary. The competition celebrates microscopy excellence and promotes colour blind friendly images. There
Congratulations to Dr. Marinka Twilt on her 2021 Arthritis Society funding. Dr. Twilt was awarded a Strategic Operating Grant for her project: “Three-dimensional facial imaging compared to MRI for JIA associated TMJ arthritis: Identifying easier access and a more patient-friendly method.” Dr. Twilt is a clinician scientist and member of ACHRI’s Care Transformation for Children Program. This study will be performed in collaboration with ACHRI Deputy Director Dr. Benedikt Hallgrimsson’s morphometrics lab.
